

Bachelor of Applied Science Degree Programs

The Bachelor of Applied Science Degree (BAS) enhances professional development and hones leadership skills for community college transfer students earning an Associate of Applied Science in approved major areas. The degree is designed to provide a seamless transfer experience by providing the opportunity for community college students to transfer credits from the Associate of Applied Science major into the Regis University foundational major. The BAS degree provides skills in management, leadership, critical thinking, writing, and communication skills. It promotes broad career horizons and enhances cognitive skills relevant in any working environment.
